

Abstract

A method for reuse of standard blots and microarrays via removal of the capture reagent from the array, allowing multiple rounds of experiments using the same blot or microarray, without the need to remove the target molecules or the probe molecules attached to the support.